Born in the Blood.

A ramarkable case of foodness for intex cating l'quors on the part of a four-year-old boy is attracting considerable attention in local medical circles. The mother of the youngeter in question keeps a small grog scop away down town. Ose day, when be had barely reached his third year, he imbibed a couple of swallows of whickey, which stupefied him for some time. Ever since then be has bad a craving for the ligger, and whenever it is within his reach he loses no time in taking a drink. A couple of months ago he found a tumbler cantaining four ounces of whiskey behind the bar, and while his mother's back was turned he drained the glass. Fifteen minutes later he was stupid, and in fifteen more he was unconscious. Dr. J. H. Musser, who was sent for by the mother, found the child as cold as death, with a clammy perspiration on his body and a frequent and feeble pulse. A hot minstard bain and other remedies were applied, but the soungster failed to regain consciousness until twenty-six hours had clapsed. The child has also a passion for cigars, and for the last year he has managed to get a daily smoke. "One day," says Dr. Musser, "I was horrified to find him smiking a cigar the strength of which would have made me succamb,"-Philadelphia Record.

A TEST OF PRONUNCIATION .- The following composition was placed upon the blackboard at s teacher's icstitute, and a prizo of a Webster's Dictionary offered to any person who could read a box, or six boxes for five dollars; sent by mail it and pronounce every word correctly. The book was not carried off, however, as twelve was the lowest number of mistakes in pronuncation: "A sacriligious son of Balial, who suffered from brouchitis, baying exhaus ed his financ s. n order to make good the definit resolved to ally himself to a come y, loniont and docile young lady of the Malay or Cancasian race. He accordingly purchased a callione and coral secklade of a chameleon bue, and securing a suite of rooms at a principal hotel, he engaged the headwaiter as his condictor. He then disparched a letter of the most unexpep ionable eshieraphy ax ant, inviting the young lady to a matince. She revolved at the idea, refused to consider berself sier ficable to his disires, and sent a polite note of refusal, on receiving which be precised a osrbine and bowie knife, said hat he wond not now forge fetters him nosi with the quier, went to an isolated spot, sev ered his jugular vein and discharged the contents of his carbine into his abdomen. The debris was removed by the coroner."

The mistakes in pronunciation were made in the fellowing words: Speriligious, Belist, bronchitis, exhausted, figanets, deficit, deci'e, comely, lenient, Malay, colliege, chameloon, suite, coadjutor, calligraphy, matince -acrifica. ble, carbine, hymeneal, usuar d, debris and jugular.—Ruthland (Vt) Herald.

A PECULIAR CASE OF SOMNAMBULISM -A case of s. maambulism, which would appear to be worthy of expert investigation, is that of a little boy of fourteen, Martin Frobischer by name. The boy's tather is a teacher of clocution and acting, and says that little Martin, who has been from his carliest boyhood in the habit of rising in the middle of the night in a somnambulistic state, has become greatly fascinated with the study of drawing, for which he shows marked talent. This study has taken such an intense hold of the boy's mind that he rises in the night in a completely unconscious state and will continue to work on an unfinished piece of drawing with as much skill and dex terity as though he were awake. The other night he get un and drew a herd from a cist which he had drawn on paper during the previous day on the wall of his champer. Last winter he caught a serious co'd from sitting up during the night in his nightshirt courg d upon bis usual absorbing pursuit, and nex morn ing his mother found him with a decided stiffness of the knees. He exhibited some very olever drawings by the boy, partially done, as be declared, while the little fellow was in this remarkable condition. When asked whether por ton of 2240 lbs. it was a hereditary tendency in the family, he said that his own brother-the boy's unelehad been subject to it, and, strange to say, Martin's youngest brother was now catching the TILIZER, composed of Scuth Carolina Bone. infection of nectornal escapades.-New York Herald A GOOD MOBAL BXAMPLE -During the recent observance of Yom Kippur, the great annual Day of Atonement of the Hebrews, the most orthodox Jews went solemnly to the river. turned their pockets inside out and allowed the contents thereof, according to their specific gravity, to float or sink. This act was supposed to be a casting off of darling sins, which, among the Hebrews as well as all the rest of us find their inspiration, strength and safest refuge in the pocket. How many honest men the world would suddenly contain if all people, without regard to creed would follow the era uple of the honest Hebrew! The only fault there would be about a general act of atonement on the Hebrew plan would be that most Gentiles would be careful to empty their pockets at home before they went near the river.
